School for

Lair

2012-2013

Congratulations to our 2013 Graduates!

I am so proud of your commitment to work hard in your lessons and to prepare yourself for the challenges that come your way. I have seen you grow this year into young adults who became a part of our campus workforce, led our musical groups, initiated and advocated for changes in school policies, and assumed the responsibility of living independently. Several of you are returning next year as part of our new Postgraduate Study Program to prepare even further for the choices you want to have in your life.

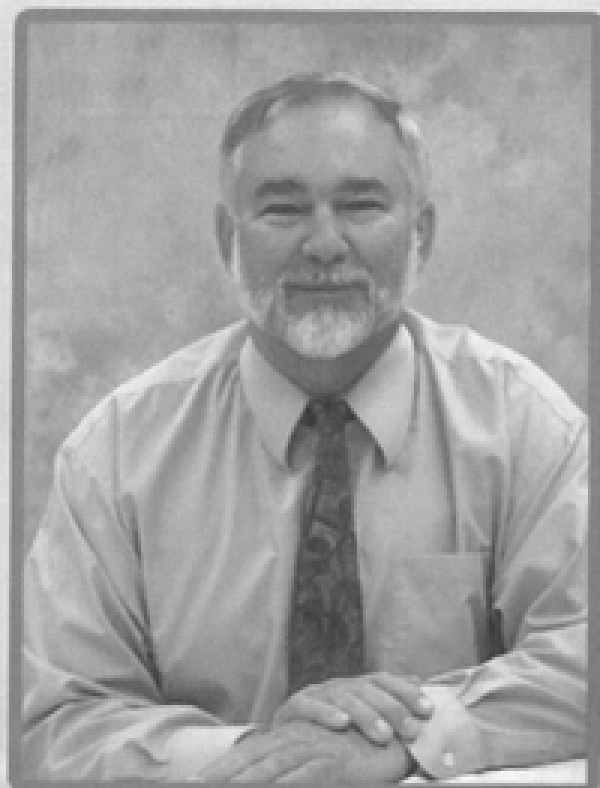

The decision that you and your family made for you to acquire your education at the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind involved sacrifices. The goal of our work every year is to ensure that those sacrifices were worth it. We give our best to you. It is always true; however, that you give more than your best to us and that it is we who learn the most from you.

Thank you for spending so many years of your young lives with us. We will not forget you and hope that you know this is always the home you can come back to again and again and again.

Best wishes,

Lynn Beyer

Superintendent

Congratulation on your successful completion of another school year! It is my hope that you used your time in school wisely and worked hard to prepare yourself for the future. It is my hope that you took advantage of every opportunity to learn all that you could. That you asked questions when you were not sure or did not fully understand. That you participated in extra-curricular activities as clubs, organizations and athletics will provide greater opportunity and enhance your school experience. I suppose what I am trying to say is to "be all that you can be" to borrow an old army slogan. However, to be all that you can be requires extra effort on your part. So take control of your life and get involved in making every effort to maximize your school experience. Be wise and use your time in school wisely to prepare yourself for the future.
