WVSD&B 1870 - 2010

he yearbook staff dedicates the 2010 Lair to all former, present, and future students and staff of the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf in celebration of its 140th anniversary.

On March 3, 1870, the West Virginia State Legislature signed a bill establishing the Schools for the Deaf and the Blind (WVSD&B) in Romney. Twenty-five deaf and five blind students came through the doors for the first school term on September 29, 1870. Back then, students went home only once a year at Christmas, and most of them traveled by train!

Throughout this yearbook there are photographs from WVSD&B's archives of students, buildings, sports teams, and staff. For the most part, the dates when the photographs were taken are unknown. Any available information is included near the photo.

ADMINISTRATION & STAFF

Superintendent's Message

Dear Students:

If walls could talk, I wonder what the hallowed and storied walls of WVSD&B would say? What stories would they tell about the students and staff who have preceded us? Would the walls speak of late night giggles in dorm rooms, student pranks played on other students and staff, the changes that have happened over the years, and the instruction that occurred in classrooms?

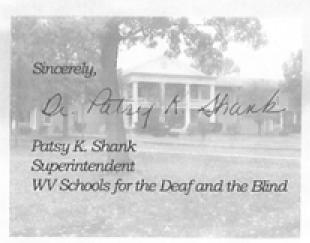

It would be interesting to step into a time machine and travel back to the campus as it was nearly 140 years ago when the school began. What would we see and experience? Would we travel to school on the train or in a horse and buggy? Would teamsters deliver the school's supplies in a wagon drawn by horses? Would we learn our lessons with slate and stylus, chalkboard and chalk, or paper and a quill pen? The buildings themselves would have been heated with coal or wood, and food would have been made from scratch and prepared on wood fired cook stoves. Our classes would include reading, writing and arithmetic and the trades of the day, hamess making, broom making, baking, and tailoring. What would we do in the evenings without television, radio, I-pods, cell phones, and the Internet? Wouldn't you, too, like to visit the past and gain a feel for what life was like at WVSD&B way back then?

WVSD&B's past has many stories to tell and a rich history to share with us. Though many of our alumni and retirees are no longer with us, many are still among us and come back to our campus to share their stories about their time at WVSD&B. Many of us enjoy sitting around and listening and watching as they spin their tales and speak of their memories of life at WVSD&B. As we approach our 140th Anniversary, we look forward to our alumni sharing even more of their memories with us through oral interviews, letters, and video.

Soon many of you will graduate and join the ranks of our beloved alumni. As you move forward with your life after WVSD&B, I'm sure that you, too, will have your own stories to share about your time at WVSD&B. It is that woven tapestry of stories—past, present, and future—which becomes our collective history and speaks to what this institution and its people are about. As we reflect on past and present times, we also look to the future and the continued success of The West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind.

Best wishes in all that you do as you continue your journey through life. May your love of the school and the memories of your time here travel with you as you transition from WVSD&B to life after school.

Principal's Message

Congratulations Seniors! You will soon complete another chapter in the novel of your life. I can say with a great deal of confidence that you now believe that your high school years have passed by quickly. As you move past your high school graduation and continue adding chapters to your life, it is my greatest wish that you will find happiness and success. I hope that our school has prepared you well and that the good memories of your school days will be long remembered. It has been a pleasure for me to work with you and watch you grow and mature at WVSD. For some of you the change that I observed was amazing. Each of you possesses an attitude and work ethic that will take you far on the road to success in life. Your accomplishments and achievements during your high school years already show proof of your capabilities. Continue to work hard to accomplish your goals and attain your dreams in life.

The class of 2010 has many wonderful examples of students that absolutely thrive in our school's special environment. Some of these students have literally blossomed. It makes me very proud to have witnessed the success of countless students throughout my thirty year tenure. It comes as no surprise that our school has survived by providing quality education and exceptional opportunities for our students during the past 140 years.

Director of Student Life's Message

Dear Seniors,

As you prepare to leave your home here at WVSD, I hope that you will look back on your time spent at Seaton Hall and remember all the experiences that you had. You have started to create your own personal history and you have made your mark in the history of this school. You all have the skills and qualities necessary to continue to move forward into your futures. Remember these three things:

- Believe in your abilities to try new opportunities
- —Be respectful to yourself, your family, & others that you meet
- —Be inquisitive about things in life

You all have been a pleasure to know and watch grow into the individuals that I see today. You have made an impact on this school and your home for the time that you have spent here. You can be proud of your accomplishments and know that you are part of this school's history.

Sincerely,

Christine M. Frye

LEARNING and SERVING

Students set tables, helped prepare the meals, washed dishes and equipment, served the meals, and cleaned-up after the meals. Students learned to use the meat slicer, tabletop grill, tabletop deep fryer, steam kettle and large floor mixer. One dinner featured sliced roast beef, another grilled pork chops, and the third an Italian chicken dish. Dessert for every meal, was a fruit crisp topped with ice cream. Chef Chuck Jeffries worked with the ProStart students to increase their skills in the kitchen.

Dinners were served in the Seaton Hall dining room and attendance averaged seventy-five people. ProStart students include: Cassie Heaster, Samantha Johnson, Maddie Mongold, Holly Ramos, Chelsea Tallman, Shawna Weatherholt, and Kimberly Bryant. The WVSD ProStart instructor is Kathy Kuykendall.

ERMA ORA BYRD HALL

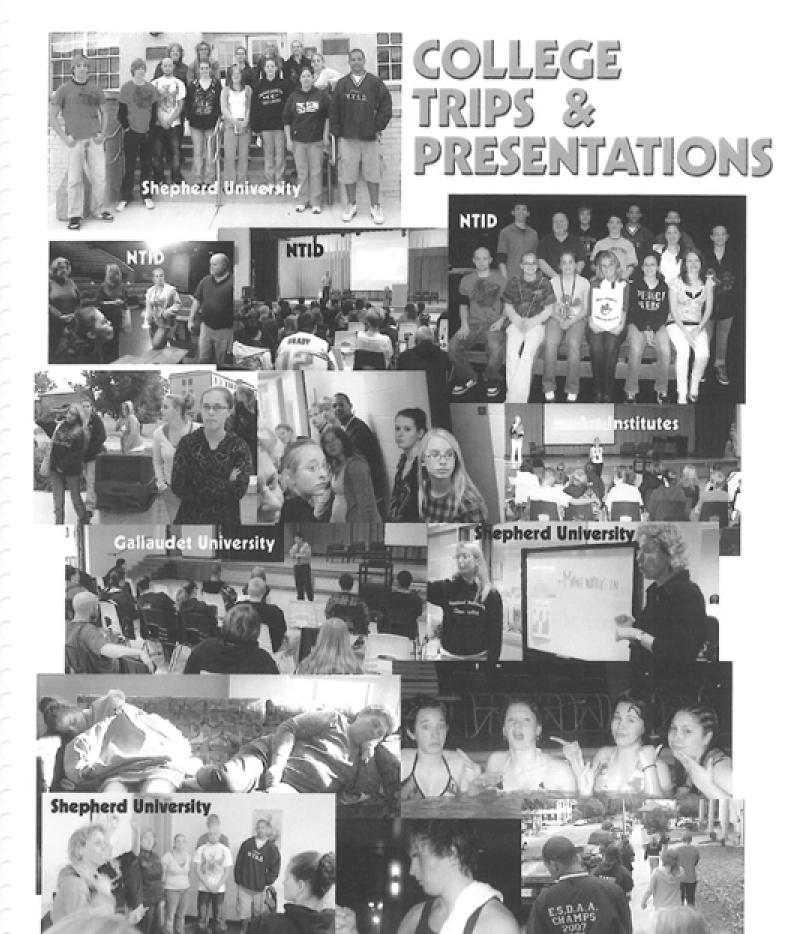

WVSD students have been getting a wealth of information about higher education recently. Seniors and juniors have taken trips to Shepherd University and Gallaudet University to hear presentations from students and staff, toured dorms, and learned about financial aid. While at Shepherd University students talked with WVSD '09 alumnus Jason Holliday, and at Gallaudet University they met with '09 alumnus Brandy McGowan.

In September, WVSD students attended an excellent presentation by Mollie Eaton, from the Art Institutes. Students also attended an informative presentation by John Reid from the National Technical Institute for the Deaf (NTID). English teacher, Mr. Josh Liller (WVSD '93 alumnus), and Mrs. Kuyken-dall took a group of Juniors and Senors to NTID in the fall, Mr. Liller is a graduate of NTID.

or the past three years, a group of women known as the Community Quilters of Hampshire County has dedicated its time, talents, and most of all love, to create handmade quilts.

On December 4, the ladies were finishing up the last of the 170 personalized quilts (twin or lap-sized), for every student attending the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind.

"We worked with contacts from the school to identify specific needs and interests of each child, so that the quilts could be personalized," said Maureen Wysopal, coordinator.

And quilts alone didn't satisfy one of the CQHC members. Jackie Shaffer said, "What is a Christmas gift without the wrapping?" The women took her comment to heart and made a pillow case to match every quilt. "This project has been unbelievably rewarding," said a teary-eyed Pam Brady, coordinator. "These girls put their hearts and souls, their talents, creativity and even their own money into our projects, "said Wysopal.

When the English teachers at WVSD Secondary heard about the quilt project, they responded by planning collaborative activities related to quilting for their classes.

English/Language Arts students researched the world of quilting, studied short stories and quilt myths, discussed articles, and read the novel, A Stitch in Time. Graphic arts/photography students took pictures of the quilts and designed computer generated quilt squares. Social Studies students worked on quilt history.

The math teachers taught how math is used in pattern design and measurements in the making of a quilt. The Underground Railroad quilt myths brought a study in written and oral history.

Art students used various mediums of quilt design and made their own quilt squares. ProStart (food services) students organized and planned a reception to follow the quilt drama, serving, in part, a beautiful and delicious Patriotic Quilt cake.

The students and teachers of WVSD entertained the quilting group December 18 with a play entitled The Quiltmaker's Gift. The play reflected all the different class teachings.

The gathering at the school on the 18th was as emotional for the givers as it was for the receivers. "It was a large project to complete in a year, but those smiles erased the workload stress."
